Liturgy Reflection

In today's Gospel, notice how Jesus praises God, first as Father, then as Lord of heaven and earth, bringing together intimacy and transcendence. His primary relationship with the One Israel called Lord, is captured by the word "Father." This relationship of Father-Son defined Jesus in a way that takes us into the heart of the mystery of the Trinity. But then Jesus opens this relationship to us: "No one knows the Son except the Father, and now one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son wishes to reveal him." More wonderful still is Jesus' revelation to us that the Father has revealed "these things" to the little ones rather than the wise and learned. What "things" are these? The truth that the Son is meek and humble of heart, the one foretold by Zechariah as coming not as a warrior but as a peacemaker, bringing peace to the nations, a cause for rejoicing. In a world so often torn by war and violence, Jesus wishes us to put on his yoke, to be guided living in the Spirit of God.

Today's Readings

First Reading - Zechariah 9:9-10

Psalms - Psalm 145

Second Reading - Romans 8:9, 11-13

Gospel - Matthew 11:25-30

Setting Aside the Weapons of War

Why, we might ask the prophet Zechariah today, would God want to banish chariots and horses? The answer follows: because they are used to violate God's reign of peace, along with the warrior's bow. In the days of Zechariah, chariots and horses were high-priced items used only for war-making. They were the aircraft carriers and nuclear missiles of his day. And for his culture, which thought of any king as being a military leader first and foremost, a king riding on a lowly beast of burden to proclaim peace without horses, chariots, and bows would have set his listeners topsy-turvy. This lowly, beast-riding king of peace, we believe, was fulfilled in Jesus, gentle and humble of heart. In a world torn by military strife often generated by differing religious views, and even in our own lives and homes where we are often at "war" over the tiniest things, we would do well to stop and consider to what degree we are willing to be like that "king" whose way of gentleness and humility is the way for us to find rest for our weary souls.

Next Sunday's Readings

First Reading - Isaiah 55:10-11

Psalms - Psalm 65

Second Reading - Romans 8:18-23

Gospel - Matthew 13:1-23

HOLY FATHER'S PRAYER INTENTIONS

Evangelization: Those Distant from the Christian Faith

That our brothers and sisters who have strayed from the faith, through our prayer and witness to the Gospel, may rediscover the merciful closeness of the Lord and the beauty of the Christian life.

Urgent Intention: Christians in Africa

May the Holy Spirit grant peace to the entire world. May He heal the wounds of war and terrorism, which most recently struck innocent civilians in London. Let us pray for the victims and their families.

A NOTE FROM THE PARISH ADMINISTRATOR

Hopefully you had a safe and happy 4th and heeded Msgr's warning: "If you drink a 5th on the 4th you may not come forth on the fifth."

Ordination Tickets: The ordination of "Bishop Bill" Wack will be on August 22 at the Bay Center, Pensacola. Due to Bay Center regulations tickets are required for entry. Each parish will receive an allotment of tickets. We're still working on it, but we're attempting to get 100 per church. If you'd like to attend, notify the parish office prior to July 21. We'll do our best to accommodate everybody and may have to limit per family attendees.

If it has seemed that you've sat at the 98 traffic lights a little longer these days, especially getting onto 98 – well, you have. In anticipation of changes of traffic patterns with the bridge construction, FDOT has been fiddling with the stoplights, so you can expect to spend several seconds longer on the side streets but have traffic flow longer on 98.

I've noticed loose yard trash along the streets where someone has done a great deal of trimming and cutting back. This isn't left by the yard guys and landscapers – it's left by guys who drive down the streets until they see a house with a great deal of vegetation. They make a deal with the homeowner then leave piles of limbs and clippings along the street, assuring the resident that the city will pick it up. They won't – at least not in the city limits – not sure about outside the city. Yard trash must be left in cans or bundled so it can be picked up easily, otherwise the truck goes on its merry way, and the homeowner is stuck with the trash. Unless they agree to remove the trash – don't do business with them.

If we were to make it the Great Underwear Race between St. Ann and Our Lady, Our Lady would win handily. Remember – we're supposed to be collecting (new) underwear and socks for the Alfred Washburn Center. It's one of the shelters where the clients can take a shower and get clean clothes. Our Lady has done a great job – can't say the same for St. Ann. C'mon Man!!

We were able to provide 15 cases of fruit bars to the Weekend Food Program – headed up by Our Lady parishioner and Parish Council President Mike Stahl. That's a great program, and we're happy to share some of the bounty provided to us by Publix.

Last Friday we invited the construction crews for The Arbors over for a burger. More than 100 workers joined us for lunch as the Knights of Columbus pitched in with their grill and chefs. This was the third time we have used this opportunity to break bread with the workers. The entire Greenhut crew has been very easy and open to deal with, as we work to make sure we're good neighbors and also provide them as much parking assistance as possible.

Homegrown tomatoes are defined as the best way to devote 3 months of your life to saving $2.17.

HEALTH TIPS BY MELISSA

Fresh produce is the best source of natural nutrients that can help your entire body running smoothly. I recommend every healthy kitchen have the following versatile and flavorful favorites on hand: 1. Onions - sulfur compounds found in most varieties of onions may be responsible for its health benefits, including the possible lowering of cholesterol and blood pressure. 2. Garlic - this fragrant bulb may help boost the immune system, prevent colds, lower blood pressure and cholesterol, and fight fungal infections. 3. Spinach - this dark leafy green contains antioxidant carotenoids that may help prevent cataracts and macular degeneration. Spinach is also a source of calcium and folate. 4. Cabbage - this low-cost yet highly nutritious cruciferous vegetable contains nutrients called indoles, which may protect against both breast and prostate cancer. 5. Sweet potatoes - rich in beta carotene, these vegetables may help boost the immune system, deliver vitamin C and folate, and are low on the glycemic index.

Faith and Science: Seeking One Truth

Our children need to learn that the wonders of the Catholic faith and of the created world go hand in hand.

by Todd H. Ahern

For much of my life, I thought an educated person had to make a choice between religion and science, faith and reason. Surveys show I was not alone. Many scientists describe themselves as atheists or agnostics, and many young people turn away from religion because they are taught that science is incompatible with belief in God.

Today, as a committed Catholic and a tenured professor with a Ph.D. in neuroscience, I want to assure my fellow fathers that faith and science are not opposed. We can teach our children to seek the truth in both.

The popular perception that the Catholic Church is anti-science is simply untrue. Yes, there are examples of conflict; Galileo likely comes to mind. But such incidents are rare, oversimplified and do not accurately represent how important the Church has been in the development of science.

The physicist who first proposed the “Big Bang” theory in 1927 was Georges Lemaître, a Catholic priest. Nicolas Steno, a 17th-century bishop, helped establish modern geology and paleontology. Gregor Mendel, a 19th-century Augustinian friar, is the father of modern genetics. The list of priest-scientists is very long.

Spend some time with your kids looking up how many craters on the moon are named for Jesuit astronomers. For centuries, the Vatican has run a respected observatory, and devoted Catholics continue to contribute to the sciences.

If we do not teach our kids about faith and science, a false dichotomy will damage our culture and the next generation. My own experience may offer some insight. Like many children, I loved books about animals, dinosaurs, the sea and astronomy. I saw the world as a treasure trove to be discovered, unpacked and catalogued. But during high school, I devoured popular science books by Carl Sagan, Stephen Hawking and others. These remarkable scientists offered great insights into the physical world, but they also promoted scientism, a reductive understanding of the world that excludes God or religion. At best, they saw religion as a byproduct of random evolution; at worst, as a cultural virus. Unaware of how much the development of science owed to Catholic thought, I made the false choice of science over faith.

Eventually, I earned a doctorate in social neuroscience, exploring the biological basis of attachment, social bonding and the interplay between family dynamics and biology, including the upbringing of the next generation. I learned much about the influence of genetics and neurochemical reactions, but the hard science could offer no model for heroic virtue or help me understand the mystery of God’s grace. It provided no guidance for how I should love my wife or for the self-sacrifice needed to raise my children well.

Inspired by my wife’s philosophical training and Catholic faith, I came to see that Jesus Christ and his Church offer insights into reality and the human person beyond what physical science can provide.

While the Catholic Church has made invaluable contributions to nearly every scientific discipline, it also widens our view by proclaiming God’s revelation – truths that go beyond reason but are not contrary to it. We are not simply a sum of our genes or walking, talking machines. In his sacred humanity, Christ “reveals man to himself” and calls us to our true identity as sons and daughters of a loving Father (cf. Gaudium et Spes, 22).

So, dads, here’s a piece of Father’s Day advice: Encourage your kids to explore the created world, and encourage them to explore the deep truths of our faith. They will be better for it, and so will we.
